

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a method of screening the operating conditions of a coupling
5 reaction of at least two functional groups, and in particular of catalysts that are useful in this coupling reaction, and also to kits suitable for allowing this method to be carried out.

Applications: fundamental and applied
10 research, in particular in the areas of chemistry, agrofoods, pharmacy and environmental protection, for the development or optimization of synthesis reaction yields.